A: You are using a syntax error. You need to use ":" instead of ";". I think that is not what you are trying to achieve, but the above should work. $cat = $pdo->prepare("SELECT p.id,p.post_title,p.date_added,p.date_modified,p.date_posted,p.post_content,u.id AS userid,u.name AS username FROM ${table_prefix}users AS u,${table_prefix}posts AS p WHERE u.id=p.userid AND p.post_status=1 AND p.post_type=1 AND p.`post_password`=1 AND p.post_title!='' ORDER BY p.`date_added` DESC LIMIT :start,:num"); $cat->bindParam(":start",$_GET['start']); $cat->bindParam(":num",$_GET['num']); $cat->execute(); $rows = $cat->fetchAll(); Q: Why are there 3 separate source code files for a file explorer? I have used Visual Studio 2005 and 2008 for developing a file explorer (imagine it as windows explorer). I used the solution explorer (in 2008) to drag and drop the files and folders and wrote everything on the code file while in 2005 it was all on the form (still dragging and dropping the files). Anyhow, while building both projects it generated 3 files for each single window: MainWindow.cs MainWindow.Designer.cs Main.cs And each of these files was about half a megabyte in size. The reason for all of this is because I used Drag and Drop to get all the windows and with each drag and drop of a folder on the form, the new folder window would open in its own thread and call a method that would handle the open/close of the new window. My question is... Why is this? Why is Microsoft allowing for so much extra code that is not needed to simply write the file explorer? Should I not be using Drag and Drop to create the file explorer and instead "drag and drop" as the file explorer would be opened in its own thread, meaning I could avoid the need for the
