“What we’ve created is an engine for life – not just football, but life itself.”
—— Robert Dillon, FIFA Producer New Ways to Manage Game Dynamics HyperMotion Technology brings the player and their on-field actions directly into the gameplay engine, allowing players to move and play with more confidence than ever before. New and improved player behaviors help make the most of the new skills and reactions available to you in FIFA 22. The ball performs with a new level of fluidity and control, creating shots that look more realistic than ever. The goalkeepers can now dive in all directions to parry and save shots, and players can hit the ground from sprints, dribbles and moves, causing goals to ricochet in new ways. New Ways to Manage Match Dynamics In FIFA 22, there are eight league seasons to unlock. As seasons progress, you can compete for the better leagues, coaches and stadiums.

New stadiums offer new ways to experience matchday atmospheres, with more captureable ambiance than ever before. Updated player models, additions to player preferences, and new pitch and stadium animations round out key improvements to matchday. The transition from match to match is smoother than ever as new player animations, crowd visualizations and microphones further enhance the game's realism. HyperMotion Technology, EA Sports Precision Match Physics, Dribble Control System, New Player Effects, Updated Player Models, New Pitch and Stadium Visuals More Ways to Manage Play Players now react to the ball, showing new skill moves and enhancing your ability to deceive defenses. Tactical moves, along with new quick-reaction passes, are the result of a refined “Dribble Control System.” The new system can be set as a regular way of passing the ball, or enabled with a simple button press and is instantly on or off depending on your preference. Improved ball physics and changes to settings on the ball’s flight path also allow more options for shots and long-distance passes. Improved Player Responses Positionally-aware reactions, such as catching and defending crosses, can be fully controlled at any point in the field, and react to what the defense is doing. Players can now make 360° turns to attack on the dribble, and defensive players can pin-point and follow through with a split-second to make a quick, decisive tackle. Each reaction is aligned with the
