. Hexbyte: Windows XP The Mac OS X Prepar3D v4 Commercial License Key is the host key and. the Prepar3D Key for $49.95 CAD viaÂ .Q: OCMock: Unmock methods in initialisation I'd like to test a instance method with OCMock.

Class _class(NSObject):
def numberOfThings(self):
return 3
class ThatClass(NSObject):
def anotherNumberOfThings(self,
value):
return
self.numberOfThings() + value

In my unit tests, I want to mock and stub the initialisation of the class, but I don't want to un-mock the method that was mocked for the class. I want to use OCMock to mock the initialisation of the class.

mockObject =
OCMClassMock([ThatClass class])

How do I stub the method numberOfThings in my instance of _class with OCMock? I've been looking at using the function:

OCMStub([mockObject class]).numberOfThings() But it's still making a new instance of _class. A: Stubs can only replace the actual object: mockObject = OCMClassMock([ThatClass class]) mockObject.numberOfThings = OCMClassMock([OCMStub([self class], return 42)]) They can't replace a class method.
