Clean and easy-to-use application, which manages files as you wish; most important: You can add the location of the files in the tray window as regular folders, so the files are moved when you change the location. Designed with a minimum of borders. New age applications, which are a very big deal nowadays, are free of all sorts of viruses, malware, and often even vulnerabilities that can affect our personal information, or damage our system in many ways. A big deal, and something very nice. Basically, there is a huge number of such products available, and we are going to highlight several of them. List of application reviews These are only a few of free applications that can be used to protect your system against all sorts of threats. I'm developing a new utility for Unix/Linux, so i've decided to create a new section within this site where it will be possible to find the most relevant pieces of information for developers out there. I hope to keep this space updated and reliable. This project encompasses 3 different programs. Code: Code - that is a small server, which runs on Linux as a daemon. The server listens for requests and handles them accordingly. Pass - that is a web-based password management program, which will be a GUI (Application User Interface) that will work within the browser. The reason behind these 2 applications is because i feel that security-related tools, or private applications (Password manager) can be useful even for non-security-related users, while the server application is usually used by people, who are more of a power user, and are familiar with command-line usage. There will be separate sections dedicated to each program, so make sure to check back often! As always, If you have any feedback, any suggestions or just want to leave a comment, feel free to do so! I just updated the link of my earlier post. The new one is located in the Blog Archive link below the post. As you can see in this post, i added a few more projects under one roof, and in this case, i created a new section to promote them within my blog, and in this case, a section dedicated to open source / free software. What can you expect from my new section? First, I have a big list of projects to show you, which should be interesting. Most of the projects can be either used 3a67dffeec
