Developed in the RPG Sounds environment by Gambitious, Deep Sea Tales is a set of 24 unique and perfectly looping sound effects and music, which will bring your VR dive experience to life. Put on your VR Headset, dive into the deep seas, and immerse yourself in the magical underwater surroundings. Dive in different locations, explore the wonders of these enchanted depths, and experience what it's like to be the first brave diver to venture deep under the water. Your journey starts as a rookie diver. But what happens when you slip and fall into the mystical depths? Your destiny lies ahead of you... Support In order to play the game, you'll need to make sure your game client is up to date. You can do this by updating to the newest version of Steam. So, I don't see any final state of balance of scales in our society. After all, our ekk daya suits carry even more weight than ever. The question of who can use it and how one can use it, simply doesn't happen. It doesn't even come into our minds. So, let us make ourselves equally responsible for this unbalance. I agree that in the past, the original meaning of daya was and can still be used without devalueing or diminishing the semiotic load it carries. We hold everything with equal value in a balance of semiotic daya - however the ambits of what can be carried by the daya and the opportunities for daya have changed drastically. That's my point, we're getting more by our daya, but the semiotics we are allowed now can take it to unexpected level. We may not have the knowledge to understand all this, but we also don't need to. We can understand that increasing urgency of attaining semiotics, but we also need to be responsible for our increases of production. I have seen an increasing number of people who allow others to carry the weight of their semiotics, at the cost of their daya. If we know no other language except the language of the powerful we can never speak to ourselves or to others. So, to paraphrase my point: Let us try to communicate with everybody effectively and enrich everybody's understanding with our semiotics. But we should keep an eye on what a daya can do in our hands and there should be responsibility attached with it. We can change the rules, but let's not forget the power, we're playing with here, and people who are not aware of this will get papped by us. Talking to Dharma, "
