I really like the Bebab, but the Luna is even more to my liking. I just got mine for $39.99. If you like wearing the smallest possible clothes, this is it. The bebab is smaller than the Bebe at 0.5 cm. It is hot outside, I'm going to do some laundry. Maybe I'll change my mind about trying the Omega Petite. I was skeptical when I first heard about it. What is it? How is it selling at that price? I'll tell you the backstory. My wife gets a lot of attention at the holiday parties as she is small. She's 5'2" 118 lbs. I'm 5'5" and 220 lbs. However, no one wanted to hire me for their baby shower. It's hard to get things done, they were afraid I would drop something and break it. So my wife went around to baby stores and found one (which I've forgotten the name of) that had the Bebe. She took it with her to the parties. The people loved her because she made the party fun and held the baby. They loved the Bebe because it was easy to maneuver and push the little ones along, and it was high in height. People would tell her that if she had a small one, they would like to hire her to be the babysitter. She'd respond with "I'm looking for a job." Then she took this little company called Omega and she started hand-making them in a small facility. After a couple years of talking with the owner and reading stories about Omega products, she decided to try it herself. She sold her store and has been making Omega pants for the past couple of years. Here's her story. I wouldn't be here if I were lying to you. It's legit. It also has high quality and is small. The Bebe is $64.99. If you are above a small size 5 and buying for someone under a small size 4, then this is the one for you.
