Go to "menu" and go to "command". On the left of the window, you will see a list of commands. Select Autocad from the list. Command Prompt now open up and you will see the command prompt In command prompt type help to see the command parameters that you can use The other day, we received some exciting news, we had been accepted to an information sharing agreement with a company called CloudFare and the good news was that we were doing something very similar to what they are doing with their service they call CloudFare Firewall. But in a twist of fate, and with a very talented writer, the guys at CloudFare decided to call their service the CloudFare firewall. For the record I was first to find out and of course immediately told you guys on this blog but as I just discovered today we are actually listed as "CloudFare Firewall". Anyway, the deal is that they are hosting my very first app and that means I was able to get access to their infrastructure that I could use to ensure the quality and performance of the applications I write. I am now using their services for a variety of reasons. The most important is that they are able to have direct connections with a wide array of large Internet Exchange Points so I am able to use them in those areas of the world that are not covered by CloudFlare. Another thing I really like about their service is the fact that they offer TLS connections with both the client side and the server side which gives us access to very strong encryption And they allow us to not only open the connection over TLS but in addition we have full access to their servers so we can sniff the data that they are transferring over this secure connection. One of the coolest parts of working with them is that we have access to their network where we have direct access to the nodes that are used to route traffic. They use a special server, they call it a DNS DDOS protection server and it's a special type of server because the data it routes from the Internet to the local network is routed at an extremely high speed. It's cool to see the speeds at which these servers are capable of routing, the speeds at which they are designed to work and because they have access to their internal network you can see
