In this context, I would have different class names for custom-stylesheets and normal style-sheets. I read the D8 module twig_html_class but this module doesn't support my requirements (I would like to use the new Drupal 8 markup). Is there a solution to my problem? A: Thanks to @derrickq, I succeeded in writing a module to do what I want. The goal is to add a class to the page.html.twig file as follow:

{% if page.has_no_sidebar
  %} {% set stylesheet_class = " %} {% for block in page.content.first %} {% set stylesheet_class = stylesheet_class ~ '-' ~
block.getAttribute('class') %} {% endfor %} {% if stylesheet_class is defined %} {% set stylesheet_class = stylesheet_class | merge({
'custom-stylesheet': true }) %} {% endif %} {% if stylesheet_class is defined %} {% set stylesheet_class = stylesheet_class | merge({
'custom-stylesheet': false }) %} {% endif %}
