Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to computer animation and video games, and more particularly to a method for accurately generating skin surfaces of animated characters. 2. Description of the Related Art Animation and computer-generated imagery (CGI) are often used in computer games for various purposes. CGI animation for video games typically involves generating an animated representation of a computergenerated character. Typically, the process involves importing character models, which are combined into a single entity called a skeletal mesh. The skeletal mesh is then textured and scaled and animated to give it characteristics such as lips, eyes, teeth, skin tones, and limbs. A challenge of computer-generated animation is that it is difficult to recreate the surface of skin, such as the appearance of lips and skin pores. In the past, there have been many approaches to simulating texture mapping to facial features, including use of high resolution photographs of human skin, measurements of the features, use of light source and shade map to map skin tones, and more recently, defining the skin texture as a keyframecontrolled spline. However, these approaches tend to not produce realistic, convincing results. Thus, there is a need for a better approach to simulating skin surfaces of animated characters, such as the facial features and skin of a human face.indian Hot porn girl Juliette March is up for porn with her own movie and she's used up her chances.
