Description:Roblox is a free online game in which you can make your own computer game or play someone else's game. It's a lot of fun, and it gets a lot of new people every day! What is Roblox? Roblox is a free online video game website, where players can easily create their own games or play the games that other people have created. Players can edit existing games or make their own entirely new games. To make a game, players pick either a template or a "block" game object in the game, and then customize the appearance of the object by setting options. Once an object is created, users can populate the world by placing blocks to create different objects, such as platforms and a playable character. They can also place lights, props, and enemies. Like other multi-player games, Roblox games can be played with a user's friends. When two or more Roblox users are connected to the same Internet connection, the players can jump into each other's games in real-time and view each other's avatars. There are many Roblox games. The most popular ones include GTA (an urban action-adventure that includes animations and complete character models), Slapfight (an action fighting game), and Spyro: Revelation (an adventure game series based on a young dragon). What are Robux? Robux are game credits that a player earns for in-game actions and accomplishments. Robux can be used to purchase items in the games. However, players will need to gain experience points (XP) to be able to purchase items. Robux are normally added to a player's in-game account when the player plays a game for a given amount of time and receives credits for playing. The player does not need to spend real-world money to purchase Robux. Before you can buy things in Roblox games, you first need to have credits in your player account. The amount of Robux in your account is denoted by a "Robux" box. Some games, such as GTA, have difficulty levels. The player who wins matches gets experience points (XP) for each level that they have completed. The amount of Robux or XP that players will earn each day depends on the difficulty level of the game. Players who wish to upgrade a powerful weapon, or one that cannot be defeated, can spend
