RestStop is an application that hides inconspicuously in your system's tray, only to pop-up and makes itself noticed when it's time for you to take a break. RestStop is an application that hides inconspicuously in your system's tray, only to pop-up and makes itself noticed when it's time for you to take a break. It will display a slight beep when its time to take a break, as well as a ringtone of your choice. RestStop is an application that hides inconspicuously in your system's tray, only to pop-up and makes itself noticed when it's time for you to take a break. The manner in which it does this can be modified down to the last detail from the 'Settings' menu. There you can choose to modify various app-related parameters, such as specifying the rest time, work intervals, the ringtone, the snooze reminder intervals and much more. The ability to show notifications in the corner of your screen can also be enabled or disabled at will, and you can even opt to have a mouse cursor animation play when its time for a break. A great app for workaholics While RestStop can't physically take you away from your screen and somewhere you can relax, the fact that it reminds you to do it in such a subtle yet efficient way makes it a great addition to any office worker's digital library.  Log in to Rate Apps & Comments  ===== 1
