“Finally, with the new Fill & Stroke function, we’re introducing the power of Adobe Sensei to a much broader market. With a single command, you can change an eye color or a hair color on a person in a photo. We believe the future of visual collaboration and work will be collaborative. Audience members will soon be able to connect on stage and contribute our latest techniques, designs, and workflow tips with the world’s most respected creative talent.” “Photoshop is the leader in image editing, and Adobe Photoshop CC is the most innovative version yet; with improved performance and more powerful technology, we can reimagine collaboration in innovative ways.” Professional graphic designers have relied on Photoshop for a long time now, and while it continues to grow in power, there’s no doubt that the program has a few issues here and there. For example, the most recent CC release added support for a new 10-bit color space, but it was omitted from earlier releases of the app. Considering the advanced capabilities of Photoshop, that’s quite surprising. Although Adobe already offers a wide selection of tools and techniques for digital artists, there are always aspects of the application that can be improved, and the latest addition of the Adobe Sensei AI from Adobe Labs aims to remedy that. Unfortunately, Sensei AI is available as a public beta, but it has already been rolled out to a large number of Photoshop users around the world. The team from Adobe Labs is now working with the community and leading designers to improve the available tools. And of course, Photoshop CC 2021 will also support the new 10-bit color space, so users can take advantage of its proximity to Ochre, a color space that allows for efficient color management in the future.

The new Adobe Analytics feature for Lightroom gathers anonymous data about creative decisions, including time spent looking at images and tools. This unique information helps users understand how and what they’re working with and brings new insight into the creative process. With the new feature release for 2021, users can now freely rotate around an object and see how it moves in context, as if the object, people and surroundings were frozen in time. This revolutionary technology unlocks even more creative possibilities to fine tune and test out your images and videos in real-time. Adobe built a web-based document workspace that allows you to preview, edit and share any document in the browser. Using the new Lightroom mobile app it's possible to share documents directly to the web-based workspace, which has access to all your Adobe cloud services and can easily be accessed from any device and platform. Documents can be viewed or edited in the native viewing app or a web browser. Adobe has increased its retouching tools for professionals. The recently launched Lasso tools for standard retouching and the new brush tools for advanced retouching are designed to accurately detect and hide key objects in a photo without any manual intervention. The new retouching tools provide professionals with greater precision and control to remove blemishes and dark spots from their images. The new Round Brush tool is specifically designed for blurring the areas around a face to soften facial features, while the Crease Brush tool allows for very precise selections and precise changes to the shape of the crease in the eyes. Photographers can even correct for uneven light and shading using the new Midtone Exposure Brush tool.
