Adobe XD Cloud lets users create, share, and collaborate in real time on anything from mockups to interactive prototypes, animations to social media content—in any software, on any device. New tricks include working on other people's folders, the ability to manage user credentials, and even the ability to email a link to a folder with a web-based file browser. Adobe said in its press release that it is looking to change the way people create and share content. The company also mentioned that the company is working on a new cloud service that will provide access to web-based services, like cloud storage and collaboration apps. According to the company, the new cloud service will provide an easy way to integrate users' existing content with new services. The new Photoshop features also are designed to help users be smarter and more productive. New sliders and blend modes provide an intuitive way to achieve the effects users want with a single tool, rather than having to use a complex set of controls such as masks, filters or layers. For example, the new Adjustment Brush tool now includes a one-click "Desaturate" mode that more than doubles the brushes' ability to create nuanced skin tones. The new Fill and Delete tools let users choose among several presets, including the popular Fill and Replace, or use the new one-click Delete and Fill tool to set the rules for the edits. These tools now work with every project, regardless of whether the image is in a browser or on a desktop.
